The British Foreign Office Expects a Outbreak—Panic at Jeddah— A Frenchman Assaulted by a Turkish Officer:

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.

LONDON, June 5.—(By Atlantic Cable. LONDON, Jane 5.—(By Atlantic Cable.) There was much excitement in London about the Foreign Office on receipt of of-ficial dispatches confirming the dispatches from Constantinople announcing that the Turkish government had refused to agree to reforms in Armenia which were demanded by the representatives of Great Britain, France and Russia. All the Foreign Office officials, including the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Earl of Kimberfy, were at their posts last night of Kimberly, were at their posts last night and have assembled again at the Foreign Office today.

great Mohammedan festivats of the year, which is now being observed. Consequently the powers, it is asserted here, will now address a strong note to the Porte, and, in addition, will back this up by a naval demonstration. The crisis in the East is aiready regarded on all sides as being grave, and this feeling is intensified by the news from Constantinople today telling of the panic at Jeddah, the threatened attack of the Bedoulins and the flight of Europeans who are seeking safety on board the vessels in the harbor.

It is freely predicted here that an outbreak is inevitable. There is no question of the powers abating their demands in any form, although there is a growing belief that Russia is backing Turkey in the latter's refusal to agree to the reforms demanded for Armenia. The full text of the demands of the powers will be published here today. It makes over three thousand words, and the main points of it have already been cabled. The note of the powers in this connection makes twelve distinct suggestions or demands in regard to Armenian reforms, as follows:

First—The eventual reduction of the number of vilayers.

Second—Gusrantees for the selection of valls or governors.

Third—Amnessiy for—Armenian—political poleoness.

Sixth—The inspection of prisons.
Sixth—The appointment of a high commissioner to supervise the reforms.
Eighth—The creation of a permanent committee on control at Constantinople.
Ninth—Indemnity to the Sussoun and other victims of the recent massacres.
Tenth—Regulation of religious convergions.

PANIC AT JEDDAH. CONSTANTINOPLE, June 5.—Advices from Jeddah, Arabla, a seaport of Mecca, and the scene of the recent murderous as-sault on the consular officers of Great Britain, Russia and France, announce that a panic prevails there. It is feared that the Bedouins will attack the town. The latter are held responsible for the attack upon are held responsible for the attack upon consuls, which resulted in the death of the Vice-Consul and a number were arrested in consequence. The situation is so serious that Europeans at Jeddah are hastily seeking refuge on board of merchant vessels in the harbor, taking all that they possibly can of their belongings. It is also stated that the arrival of the British Mediterranean squadron, numbering seventeen warships of various classes, is anxiously expected at Jeddah, even by Turkish authorities, as the garrison is very weak. Animosity has been aroused by the quarantine measures which the Turkish government has been compelled to take at Mecca, at the instance of the powers in order to prevent he introduction of cholera into northern ports by the return of infected pilgrims from Mecca. In fact, it is believed that the sanitary measures were the local cause of the attack upon the consuls.

The measures referred to were quite recandly taken under severe pressure of the powers, and at the instance of the Turkish international councils of health for the purpose of cleaneing the holy places frequented annually by so many thousands of pilgrims. These sanitary improvements began in April last at Jeddah and at other towns of the pilgrim district of Arabia, and they include that building of hospitals, the frequent disinfection of the places resorted to by pilgrims, the selection by the health officers of the camping places, furnishing wholesome supplies of water and provisions and general sanitary supervision over the pilgrims. To this new creder of things the latter have strongly objected, looking upon it as an unwarrented interference on the part of the Europeans, believing that their old-time privileges and pronfits will be swept away if the march of sanitation is not stopped. The envoys of Great Britain, Rursia and France in this city are awaiting instructions from their governments in regard to the situation of affairs at Jeddah as well as regarding the refusal of the Tu

THE PROCEEDINGS.

SPRINGFIELD (III..) June 5.—With every train today came large delegations to the Democratic State Convention. More people came than any one expected, and people came than any one expected, and the etreets are througed with silverites. Blue badges, bearing the inscription, "Free Silver at 16 to 1." fluttered from the coat lapels of the incomers, and many delegations carried banners proclaiming a belief in free coinage. The delegations that came in yesterday and last night were

The delegations that came in yesterday and last night were up almost with the sun this morning, and silver speeches by enthusiastic believers in free coinage could be heard in the losbies of all httels. Everey delegate seemed to be for free coinage of silver, and if there were any opposed to it they were so quiet as not to be noticeable. There is no doubt that a radical free-silver platform will be adopted and the Democratic party of this State be committed to that policy.

During the morning different Congress delegations held sessions for the purpose of selecting members of committees on credentials, rules, permanent organization and resolutions. In many cases resolutions were adopted, upholding the Democratic State Central Committee for calling the silver convention. When the committees concluded their work, a stampede was made to get desirable seats in the Senate chamber, which was to be the convention hall. When Chairman Hinrichsen walked upon the stand there was cheering. After it subsided Rev. F. W. Taylor led in prayer. At the conclusion of the prayer Hinrichsen spoke. He said the committee called the convention because of dissatisfaction over the failure of Congress to establish a permanent currency system, which threatened to disrupt the Democratic party. The President and other Democratic in high places seemed determined on a line of policy to which the rank and file of the party were opposed. The convention was called so certly for two good reasons. One was to forestall the action of the National Silver party, and the other was to open up the duestion for discussion long enough before the national convention in 1896 to prevent a hopeless split in the party. When the convention reassembled the report of the Committee on Credentials was read and adopted. The Committee on Permanent Organization elicited vigorous applause by naming as permanent chairman Judge S. B. McConnell of Chicaga. Judge McConnell made a vigorous speech, which was enthusiastically applauded. Judge McConnell said: "This convention has a most peculiar and a most significant purpose. Heretofore the managers of political parties have so arranged that party politics should be declared only at the time the candidates were chosen, and only a short time before the gathering of the representatives of the people. The result has been often that our conventions have put forth a mere assertion of general principles, and on live issues expressed themselves in meaningless compromises. Coloriese candidates have been presented to the people, or candidates unaympathelic with the real purpose of the party. "This convention marks a departure, and is intended not only to allow free discussion before the next political engagement, but to define our party position with distinctness and dedictaness, so that no voters shall fail to understand us and no candidate, if chosen to office, have a chance excesse to defeat our command."

Congressman William J. Bryan of Nebraeka was called upon to address the conventica. Bryan's appearance was the signal for tremendous applause, the delegates throwing their hats in the afr. He complimented Chicago for having as a citizen such a man as Judge McConnell, who would march as the head of the Democratic party, with the double shield. Bradley was escorted to the platform. After thanking the convention and accepting the nomination for Goyernor, Col. Bradley reviewed the recent political changes of Kentucky, and on the financial plank said:

"The platform of today is but a repetition of the platforms of the past. It demands protection for every American increast; protection for the producer, protection for the manufacturer, protection for the haborer, and protection for the currency. It denounces the heresy of the free, unlimited and independent coinage of silver, and it will protect the people from the dishowor of repudiation. It has been said before, and it is repeated now, that the dishonor of repudiation. It has been said before, and it is repeated now, that every dollar should be of equal value with every other dollar, and that every promise to pay a dollar shall be as sacred as a solder's grave, and worth 100 cents wherever the flag flies. "We are opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver, believing it would involve the country in financial ruin. We believe in a sound currency and in the use of both gold and silver for coinage, provided always that a dollar in one is made precisely as valuable as a dollar in the other.

"We favor a tariff so regulated as to protect the interests of all clases of citi-zees upon articles that may be success-fully manufactured or produced in this country, thus insuring good wages to the fully manufactured or produced in this country, thus insuring good wages to the laborer and a home market to the producer, and in connection with this we favor the re-establishment of the doctrine of reciprocity. We believe that such a system would defray every government expense, gradually liquidate every debt, restore public confidence and relegate to the rear the undue excitement now prevailing concerning the treasury. In view of the past, the Democratic party's history, its devotion to the old bank system and wildcat tendencies, we affirm that the Republican party can be more safely trusted to regulate the financial system of the nation.

silver question, said:

"At the time I opposed Bryan for the Senate I took the position that the United States could not take care of all the silver in the world, but should take care of the American product under such conditions us would make a stiver dollar as good as a gold dollar anywhere. I believe that the Republican party will make a declaration substantially the same as that of the national platform of 1892. It binds the party to take care of the American product, and I believe the obligation will be recognized. "The large wing of the Democratic party which fused with the Populists will declare for free and unlimited coinage. I feel now that there will be two Democratic conventions. When the convention is held I believe that the free-silver wing of the party will be in absolute control, though it may met be able to nominate on account of the two-thirds rule.

"I do not see how the Republicans can go any further than they did in 1892, without declaring for free and unimisted coinage of silver. The disposition of the silver Republicans to bolt is only found to any great extent in Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and Nevada. The Republicans of Oregon, California, Washington and the Dakotas will support the party declaration."

I am a high-tariff man and believe that McKinley is the best man for President."

"I feel perfectly satisfied the contest will take place at Dallas, as the business men, through their representative, seem to be on the level. There have been some remarks questioning my sincerity in the affair and some persons have been unkind enough to say that I will weaken, I can assure you, and the public as well, that I am just as ready to meet Corbett as I would to meet an inferior in the ring. Corbett, I believe, has said I was not in his class, but if Charley Mitchell was, then I certainly must be, and I cannot see where I could possibly be left out. IT WAS A COUP DE GRACE.

MADRID, June 5.—Capt. Clavigo walked to the prison van smoking a cigarette, and bowed to the crowd assembled within the prison gate. They acknowledged his courtesy by cheering loudly for the captain. The prison van, surrounded by gendarmes, proceeded to the square of San Isadore on the bank of the Manzanares River. There Clavigo alighted and walked to the center of the square, which was lined with troops on three sides.

The captain, when he reached the required position, bandaged his own eyes, and then again bowed to the people. The officer in command of the firing squad then gave the order to fire and Clavigo fell, killed instantly, but, according to custom, two shots as a coup de grace were fired at his prostrate body, although the officer was already dead. The troops then filed past the body and the remains were removed.

CHICAGO, June 5.—"To unite in a larger fellowship such existing liberal societies as are in sympathy with the movement toward undogmatic religion; to foster the organization of unsectarian churches and to develop the church of humanity." Such is the object of the American Congress of Liberal Religious Societies which held its opening session last night in Sinal Temple in this city. Rev. F. E. Dewhurst of Indianpolis was the first speaker introduced. He spoke for the independents. Dr. Dewhurst said:
"If am not flying the flag of independence. There are times when we feel the need of intellectual isolation sind them independence as a good thing, but there are times when we feel the current of more external things. Then we crave independence and fellowship. That feeling has brought us together. It is cheering and encounraging that we are not here to fly theological flags, but to find a platform where we can meet in common."

W. L. Sheldon of St. Louis was introduced as the representative of the Ethical Culturists. He attacked phrases. He said: "They have become baubles in the pulpit. They are used as almost slang. What we want is equality and brotherhood. We could let the word religion go if need be, so that the thing remained. The distinction between creeds we must have. There can be no brotherhood on a basis of zero. Our brotherhood is the brotherhood of suffering humanity. I long to go from one end of the world to the other and ask men what they have discoyared that is helpful."

Dr., Hirsch presented the Rev. Joseph Stols to give the message, not of Hebrewism, he said, but of Judaism and the Jews. He said: "This congress is the prophet to emphasize that we must not idolize our own little creed and pull down the curtains lest a ray of light get in and a heretic get out."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Col. Charles Frederick Crocker, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, returned this morning form an eight-months' trip around the Crocker said: "I think this State is about to enter on a very prosperous era. The projected San Joaquin Valley Raliroad is going to do a great deal toward that end. When I went away the project of the road had been agitated, but it had not been put into practical shape. Now there is no doubt but that the road will be built. As a business enterprise it is sure to do a great deal of good to California. I, for one, am glad to see it going ahead. I hope it will be successful.

"Now, I mean just what I say. The San Joaquin Valley Raliroad will have a wonderful influence on the development of the State and that will benefit me personally. My efforts in business are chiefly directed toward the prosperity of California. I have extremely large interests in Merced and Tulare counties. This new road will help them. Under such circumstances why should not I be glad to see it constructed? Now, as far as that enterprise is carried on as a business proposition and not with the idea of doing any other interest an injury, it is sure to succeed and certain to benefit California and San Francisco. If its purpose is to mailciously do harm to any other enterprise, then I think it will not succeed.

"Of course nobody can say definitely whether the road will itself be a financial success. I think, however, that if properly managed it will make money. I am sure that its construction will wonderfully help every interest in the San Joaquin Valley."

He declares that there was no reason for the robbery, as his share in the estate of his father, J. J. Paulsell, the well-known Democratic politician, amounts to $35,000.

There was an unexpected sensation in the case tonight when Foreman Hinkle presented the following statement:

"We, the jurymen in the case of the People against W. E. Paulsell, beg to report to this court that Juryman Julius Meyer declared in the jury-room after the second ballot that he was prejudiced against the court and should not be in this case, and that he had been reprimanded by the judge in another case and would not change his vote if he stayed here for three months. Therefore, in our opinion, the said Julius Meyer is guilty of perjury in having stated on oath that he could give this case a fair trial."

Juror Meyer asked permisson to make a statement, and said: "After the second ballot the foreman asked who was the juror that had voted for acquittal, and I replied that I had. I said there was evidence, which I mentioned that put a reasonable doubt in my mind of the defendant's guilt, and they laughed at me. That made me excited, and I said that in another case in which I was a juror the judge had made remarks against those who were for acquittal that I felt keenly and which ought to make me feel prejudiced against the court. I said that they could not force me to vote against my convictions, even me to vote against my convictions, ever though I should stay there for three

A Famous Author's Religion.

A Famous Author's Religion.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr writes to the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal as follows: "I believe in God my father and preserver. I believe in Jesus Christ my redeemer. I believe in Jesus Christ my redeemer. I believe in the Holy Ghost my enlightener and consoler. I believe in the forgiveness of sins, in the resurrection of the body and in the life everlasting. I believe in the holy Bible, from its first letter to its last, as the word of God to me. At my side lies a Bible 300 years old, filled with the annotations and confirmations of my ancestors, who not only read it, but thought it worth their while to fight for the right to do so. I would do the same today, if an occasion demanded. It I want no 'revised' Bible. I want no 'revised' and never 'faffed me'. Is has been sufficient for life: I doubt not it will be sufficient for the hour and article of death. "If now you ask me about my creed, I answer, I am an Episcopalian; but I worshiped happily with Presbyterians for twenty years, and could have done the same with Methodists. Baptists, Quakers, etc. My convictions sway decidedly to the 'inner light' of Quakerism—the light greater even than the word—'the light that Bigteneth every man that cometh into the world,' but I find good in all denominations." I have gone seldem to child and the sale with the selder word.

into the world, but I find good in all denominations.

'I have gone seldom to church lately, because I want only an old-fashioned clergyman, 'antiquated, 'slow'—that is, I want a minister who will preach the gospel, and not politics, prohibition, sanitary science, etc. If I could find a minister with the gospel lodged in a large heart, love-fraught, self-denying, making Jesus Christ the luminous center, and the very effulgence of his life and teaching. I would go to hear him every day. But I do not respect the 'new woman,' I am so old-fashioned that I cannot comprehend how a man may dedicate himself to preaching Christ, assume the title of reverend as a mark of his sacred calling, and then give at least six-sevenths of his time to running a milk farm or an intelligence office or a boarding establishment. But I recognize the variability of human creatures, and if others find these guides sufficient I do not presume to judge them. For myself, there is the fatherhood of God, the intercession of Christ, and the omnipotence of prayer. What more can a soul need or desire?"

is being fitted out with a considerable armed force, to aid the rebels here. The United States authorities at Washington and the Spanish legation there have been notified, and are informed of all the movements of the expedition and the names of the ships in use. The authorities have their eyes upon some suspicious movements about Mobile, Ala.

In reply to direct inquiries, the acting captain-general says there is no truth whatever in recent reports that Marti is still alive. He says that the corpes of Marti has been identified beyond all question. No news concerning Maximo Gomezhas been received since May 50, the day of the fight at Dosbido, where Marti was killed and Gomez reported sounded. The acting captain-general says that the reports that Marti is alive are being circulated by Cubans for the express purpose of keeping up the courage of people interested in the expedition now-rendezvousing at Dauphin Island.

THE EXPENSE AGCOUNT.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A remi-oficial statement has been received here from one of the leaders in the most influential elements in Cuba, showing that the war expenditures are becoming so enormous and the sugar and tobacco industries so unprofitable that they believe a general uprising will result from the hard times caused. The portion of the statement concerning the desperate conditions prevailing is as follows:

The war expenses of 1888-78 were paid by Cuba. Spain furnished 212,367 men, but not a single dollar. Cuba was loaded with nearly $200,000,000 debt, besides a yearly budget of $58,000,000 in those ten years. Gen. Lovellar declared in the Spanish Cortes that the war expenses had been $700,000,000, or an average of $70,000,000 a year.

Sugar produced then, with elave labor, was sold at 6% cents a pound. The tobacco industry was in such a flourishing condition that the Minister of the Colonies, Romero Roboledo, called the buildings of their factories "palaces." Leaf tobacco was sold 100 per cent. above today's prices. Per contra, sugar sells today at 1.86 cents a pound, or 30 per cent. above today's prices. It is proposed to have as a feature of the parade a foat representing the Goddess of Liberty, and the "goddess" will be selected by popular vote. The Committee on Sports is arranging for some good bicycle races, a $1000 fireworks display will be touched off, and, altogether, it looks as if the celebration might be a complete success.

There were shipped from this point during the month of May 16,008 boxes of oranges and 2370 boxes of lemons. This makes a total for the season of 72,499 boxes of oranges and 2370 boxes of lemons, a total of 275 carloads.

Among recent real estate sales are the following: Charles Frankish to Edgar W. Barrett, a Michigan banker, lots 4 and 5, in block 34 of San Antonio Heights; John Osborn to L. J. Schletzer of Providence, R. I., ten-acre lot, $330; F. R. Green to A. Dement of Los Angeles, the lattar's 300-acre ranch at Cucamonga. The consideration was $40,000.

The bicycle club-has adopted lemon as its-club color, and this hue will be very much in evidence on the Fourth of July.

This town sewer bonds have been sold to Louis Phillips, owner of the Chino ranch, and work on the system will be begin at once.

"THE NEW FORCES."

Seth Low on Combinations of Capital and Labor. President Seth Low of Columbia College gives in the June Harper's some practical suggestions regarding combinations of labor and capital, and their responsibility to the public. He says:

"The situation seems to reflect the fact

"The situation seems to reflect the fact that the laws which control the new forces that are expressing themselves in combinations of labor and of capital alike have not yet been ascertained. People have said 'labor must combine because capital combines,' and instantly there has arisen an unmistakable sense of antagonism between the two forms of organization. The point to be emphasized is that this is not the reason why labor combines. In the present age labor would combine, even if it were conceivable that capital did not. Combined labor, as a matter of fact, does make the same demands of the individual employer as it makes of the corporation. The two forms of combination, the combination of capital and the combination of habor, are not antagonistic; they are only different expressions of the same force. It throws a flood of light on many of the troubles which have marked in recent years the so-called conflict between capital and labor. For it is clear that great mistakes have marked the progress of accelety toward complete organization, both along the lines of capital and of labor. Two that the laws which control the new forces mistakes have marked the progress of so-clety toward complete organization, both along the lines of capital and of labor. Two results ought to flow from the recognition of this truth. First, the belief that the tendency toward combined action on the bart either of capital or of labor is not to be regretted, and, second, the earnest pur-pose to ascertain the laws that govern this bendency and to discover its limit of safety.

"Neither form of combination thus far is "Neither form of combination thus far as more free from just blame than the other. The directors of corporations have ridden over the minority rough-shod. They have organized subsidiary corporations for their own benefit to absorb the profits of the parent concern. They have managed with as little thought as possible for the interest of stockholders not in sympathy with shall say that popular government is not more seriously threatened by the systematic bribing of legislators, which is freely charged against great combinations of capital, than by the occasional uprisings of lesor organizations? In other words, the important thing to be recognized is that capital is guilty of precisely the same faults as labor, although these faults, in the case of capital, as is natural, show themselves in different ways. This is the important thing to recognize, because it tends to make clear to the minds of thoughful men that the so-called conflict, in our day, between capital and labor, is merely the old selfishness of men fighting for its own hand with the new weapons of combination that modern civilization has placed at its command, and that in the meanwhile society, as a whole, is vitally concerned to delimit the area within which this strift is carried on by linishting that its own rights shall be respected by both parties to the struggle."

Some Pretty Summer Curtains.

Cheesecloth in its finer qualities is a thoroughly artistic material for summer draperies, especially if edged with ruffles of the same, and these are greatly improved in appearance by being twisted in the bands before being sewed on, to give a soft effect, writes Mary F. Harman in a timely article on "Artistic Summer Draperies," in the June Ladies' Home Journal. A pair in pale yellow may be hung in the following novel way: The top of each curtain is turned over to a depth of one yard, and the valance thus formed is gathered up in folds at the outside corner to give a pointed effect. Both the valance and the curtains edge with three-inch ruffles of the same material. By inserting a strip of pink or yellow or green cambric between the home.

be secured. The color is very much toned down, of course, and it should correspond in every case with the other furnishings of the room.

Years ago, when curtain materials were not so beautiful and inexpensive as now, a friend of the writer bought some ordinary white cheesecloth, marked it at wide intervals with a pattern of circles, and worked these with pale blue crewel, using a simple darning stitch which went very rapidly. A deep valance had a border of double circles done in the same way, and the curtains, when hung, were the feature of the room.

The windows of a blue and white room may be charmingly draped with the Japanese crepe known as Chlimi cloth, it is very desirable for the purpose, as it launders well, and will bear considerable sun without fading.

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

EUROPEAN CAPITAL. One of the most encouraging signs of the money market just now is the fact that European investors are again beginning to take large quantities of American securities. The New York Journal of Commerce recently estimated that about 366,000,000 of securities including $32,000,000 bonds had been sent from the United States to Europe during two months. Advices from London are to the effect that there is a tendency there to divert a portion of the golden tide that has been flowing to South Africa to the United States. At the same time large EUROPEAN CAPITAL. One of the mos United States. At the same time large blocks of government bonds have been sold through bankers to foreign investing to the front.

Whatever may be thought about the desirability or otherwise of foreign immigration, it is a very narrow and peculiar gentiment which would keep out foreign captula from a new and comparatively undeveloped section.

THE FRUIT MARKET. The varigate solors of deciduous fruits are gradually supplanting the motony of the orange on the fruit stands of the city. Cherries, apthe fruit stands of the city. Cherries, apricots, currants, loquats, strawberries and goosberries are now to be had, although at prices which place them beyond the reach of general consumption, except for persons who are "well fixed." A few peaches have come in but they are more of a curiosity than anything else. The currants are from the North, most of them coming from San Jose. Perhaps before long it will be found that currants will grow in some sections of Southern California as well as cherries, regarding which there was also an idea prevalent for a long time that they could not be raised in this section.

wheat has been so unprofitably low ers in various parts of the countr-been directing much attention to ti-ject of substituting other crops for which seem to offer more profit cultivation. Among crops that have been planted to a considerable extent is place of wheat during the past season is flax. There seems to be no reason why more attention should not be paid to this crop in California. J. Palsche gives the following interesting information on the subject to the California Fruit Grower:

"I doubt if over 500 acres are sown to flax in California this year. It does better on new land than any other, and the great difficulty in using wheat land is that the volunteer wheat is troublesome to separate from the flax.

"I am not aware of any grower on the slope having saved his straw, so cannot give full information regarding weight of straw and fiber. John E. Ager, in the office of the New York Mutual Life Insurance Company, corner Sansome and California streets, has, I am told, been offering inducements to growers to save their fiber.

"We think good land and favorable conditions may be depended on to produce from 800 to 1000 pounds of seed per acre, and this season 2c. per pound will be an outside price.

The iow price for wheat has induced the and this season 2c per pound will be an outside price.

The low price for wheat has induced theral sowing of flax in Washington and Idaho, and in the great flax region east of the Rockies; so that if meteorological conditions are favorable I book for the largest crop of seed this year ever known, and correspondingly low prices for uncontracted seed. On this slope, one-half of the acreage is contracted for previous to seeding, and I think it is the same East. The other half has to take its chances, which will this season probably favor the buyer. Thus far in California, the bulk of the flax grown has been south of San Francisco, principally in San Mateo, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties. Solano and Sacramento counties in former years produced a little; none lately."

of the country, and, with the exception of the saimon fashery, they are less developed than any other region. Nevertheless, in the period of thirty years, during which it may be said the fisheries of the west coast have existed, the industry has attained great importance and now ranks next to that of New England and the Middle Atlantic States in extent and value. There seems no reason to doubt that the business will assume vastly greater proportions in the near future, although there is cause to apprehend a decline in several important branches, as, for instance, the saimon, the whale, the fur seal and the sea-outer fisheries.

"The various phases of the fishing industry of the west coast, including Alaska, give employment to about seventeen thousand persons, the capital invested amounts to about $8,900,000, and the annual value to the fisheries of the products taken is approximately $7,300,000.

"The special fisheries which give this region much of the prominence it possess are the salmon, the whale, the oyster, the fur eagl, the shrimp, the cod, the crab and the herring, in the order named. The value of the salmon fishery is about equal to that of all the other fisheries combined, while the canning industry connected with the fishery has an annual output but little less in value than that of all the fishery products of the Coast. The eaknon are by far the most important fishery products of Alaska, Oregon and Washington, but in the fisheries of California they are surpassed by the whales, oysters and shrimps."

One of the most interesting sections of the report is that which relates to the sardine and amenovy of the Pacific Coast. On this subject Dr. Smith says:

"The California eardine is very closely related to the sardine of Europe, from which it chiefly differs in having no teeth and less strongly servated scales on, the belly. The fish is most constant in appearance and most shundant in the southern part of the coast, and it is doubtful if it exists in aufficient numbers to maintain a regular fishery nort and for a considerable time in each sesson, for the past five years, they have been very scarce.

"The distribution of the anchovy is similar to that of the sardine.

"The matural advantages which the west coast possesses for the canning of gardines and similar fish are unusually good, and are superior in some respects to those of the east coast. The dry atmosphere and other climatic conditions of the southern coast of California are very favorable for the preparation of a good grade of canned fish. The culture of the olive supplies a mative oil of superior quality, which is essential in the canning of the best goods."

Referring to the short-lived industry of sardine canning in San Francisco, he says the establishment was in operation from June 1885 to August 1893. During the years in which the cannery was run the yearly pack was from 5000 to 15,000 cases. The fish put up in the factory were caught in San Francisco bay. In the earlier years sardines small enough for use in quarter-pound cans were obtained, but during the last two years of the cannery's existence no sardines of size suitable for "quarter oils" could be obtained.

nery's existence no sardines of size suitable for "quarter oils" could be obtained. This was the chief reason for closing the works.

Writing of the sardine cannery established at San Pedro, Los Angeles county, in 1883, which is now the only one on the Pacific Coast, he states that it is under the superintendence of an experienced fish-canner from Maine, and the plant is worth about $10,000. The sizes and grades of canned sardines placed on the market from this cannery, and the wholeasle price received, are as follows: Quarter oils, 100 cans to a case, $5.50 to $8.50 a case, according to the quality of the oil; ball foils, 50 cans to a case, $5.60 a case; two-pound oval cans, with mustard spices and tomato sauce, $2.25 per dozen cans.

Eastern people, when they come to this section, frequently inquire in regard to the terrapin; a delicate dish that is a great favorite with Eastern gournets. On this subject the report contains the following information:

"The diamond-back terrapin does not exist on the west coast. The California terrapin, the only member of the order which has as yet attained commercial prominence on the coast, is much inferior to the diamond-back in food value. It inhabits the rivers and fresh-water ponds west of the Sierras, and its range extends from Monterey to the Canadian border.

"It prefers warm, sluggish water, and is especially abundant in California. It is very plentiful in the marshy lands of the Sierras, and the successful introduction of the Sierras, and successful introduction of the Sierras, and successful introduction of the diamond-back terrapin to the west coast. The extensive salt marshes around San Francisco bay and in other places would doubtless supply a suitable habitat for the animat, whose high food value would in time bring it into active demand and stimuluste cutilivation and a profitable trade."

Dr. Smith was surprised at the great variety of fish that are found in the markets of San Francisco, which he estimated at over 100 species. He quotes the quantity of fresh

WEATHER OF THE WEEK. The weather and crop bulletin of South-ern California for the week ending Monday, June 3, issued by Observer George E. Franklin, reports: Cooler weather than usually occurs at this period of the year prevailed until the close of the week, when a hot spell set in which continues at the closing of this re-port. Brisk northerly to westerly winds prevailed on the 28th and 29th, which prevaled on the 28th and 29th, which caused dust and sandstorms to occur in the interior, but which did no injury so far as reported. The cool weather was unfavorable for the bean crop, as it retarded the growth of the plants and prolonged the life of the worms, which have been injurious in places. The grain harvest continues, and haying is practically finished.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

PACIFIC COAST FISHERIES. Probably no important industry of this Coast has been more neglected than that of the fisheries. It is true that ealmon fishing has assumed great importance during the past few years. Unfortunately, it is being carried on in such a reckless manner that unless some steps are taken to protect the fish there will be few salmon left within comparatively few years.

Some new and interesting facts in regard to the fisheries of the Coast are contained in a report made to the United States Fish Commission by Dr. Hugh M. Smith, who visited the Pacific Coast last year for the purpose of making a study of the fisheries of this region. In his general remarks on the Pacific Coast fisheries, Dr. Smith eays:

"The general country and the pacific Coast fisheries of the Pacific Coast fish

San Diego county—Escondido: This is the busy season of the year for the grain farmer: movers, harvesters and threshers are abroad in the land. Bernardo: Tae past week has been quite cool. Grain-cuting has commenced, and the hay crop is being finished, and stacking is well under way.

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 5.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, while here spent most of his time in con-ference with Woo Gen, Seattle manager while here spent most of his time in conference with Woo Gen, Scattle manager of the house of Wa Chong Company, Hongkong, and made searching inquiries respecting the disposition of Chinese toward fiour as an article of food. Woo Gen was of the opinion that if flour could be laid down in China for 62½ cents persack of fifty pounds, it could be sold at a profit for 75 cents by dealers and compete with rice. He thought that if the great masses of China once began to use flour they would not go back to rice, and if it could be placed within the reach of the laboring classes a demand would be created so large that all the flour mills on the Pacific Coast could not supply one-tenth of the calls made on them. Hill's idea is to carry flour so as to give it to the Chinese for 1½ cents per pound. He wants to be assured of a permanent demand before taking up the enterprise, and says that if the Great Northern does put on a line of steamers they will be the largest and best possible to be obtained. The question of a terminus will be determined by the lowest rate at which flour can be placed on ships. Scattle, he says, will be the place, provided the condition is fulfilled. This is understood by shippers here as indicating that this place will have the terminus, provided the Asiatic line is set up.

WASHINGTON, June 5 .- Consul-General Karel at St. Petersburg has sent to the State Department a report upon the State Department a report upon the efforts Russia is now making to overcome the obstacles which interfere with the export of her cattle and meats to different European markets. At present no Russian cattle are exported to Austria, England, France or Germany, exports of such cattle being confined to Turkey, Italy, Greece and the Island of Malta. Russian meats are allowed in Germany, but the quarantine rules, it is contended, are being abused to its exclusion. England admits Russian meat, but complains of the quality. Lately it has been found very suitable for beef tea and a demand has been created, it being used almost the quality. Lately it has been found very suitable for beef tea and a demand has been created, it being used almost exclusively for that purpose. The largest consumer of imported meats is England, that country using 1.440,980,000 to 1,661,-152,000 pounds annually. Ruesia exported in 1893 only 17,000 cattle, $2,000 hogs, 163,-000 sheep and meat to the value of 175,000 roubles. The United States supplies about three-fourths of all the meat for the European demand.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, LOS ANGELES, June 5, 1895. EUROPEAN CAPITAL. One of the mos encouraging signs of the money market just now is the fact that European invastors are again beginning to take large quantwo months. Advices from London are to the effect that there is a tendency there has been howing to South Africa to the United States. At the same time large blocks of government bonds have been sold through bankers to foreign investing syndicates. In the course of a recent resoid through bankers to foreign lavesting syndicates. In the course of a recent report Bradstrget's says:

"One issue of $3,500,000 4 per cent. mortrage bonds of the Manhattan Elevated Raifway Company, about which a public announcement has been made, have been sold at London through Mesars. J. P. Morgan & Co., and the same house is also credited with the placing in the same market of a block of $3,500,000 4 per cent. debentures of the New York Central Raifroad, recently listed on the Stock Exchange. The Manhattan bonds, it should be observed, are for the purpose of retiring the 4 per cent. bonds of the New York Elevated Raifroad, which mature at the end of the present year. It is known informally that a large amount of Southern railway securities, both stocks and bonds, have recently been sold in London, while something like a million of Chesapeake and Ohio bonds, part of the holdings of a capitalist formerly interested in the road, have also found a purchaser there. Another significant incident made public by dispatches from London is that the whole of the issue of $3,250,000 New York 3 per cent. bonds purchased some time ago by Messra. Belmont, have also passed into British hands."

This improved demand for American se-that has been going on from this country to Europe.

Here in Southern California the revival of interest in American securities and investments has already been noticed. There have been several inquiries lately for good openings in this section on the part of British capital, in spite of the unfavorable legislation which was passed in Sacramento at the last session. The probability is that unless something unforcesen should occur there will be quite a considerable amount of British capital brought to Southern California during the coming year. As The Times has previously remarked, we can use all such capital that we can obtain for the purpose of sub-dividing our big ranches, developing water for irrigation, and developing our mining resources, which are just beginning to come tources, which are just beginning to come to the front. Whatever may be thought about the desirability or otherwise of foreign immigration, it is a very narrow and peculiar gentiment which would keep out foreign capital undeveloped

COMMERCIAL.

THE FRUIT MARKET. The varigated colors of deciduous fruits are gradually supplanting the motony of the orange on the fruit stands of the city. Cherries, ap-ricots, currants, loquats, strawberries and goosberries are now to be had, although ricots, currants, loquats, strawberries and goosberries are now to be had, although at prices which place them beyond the reach of general consumption, except for persons who are "well fixed." A few peaches have come in but they are more of a curiosity than anything else. The currants are from the North, most of them coming from San Jose. Perhaps before long it will be found that currants will grow in some sections of Southern California as well as cherries, regarding which there was also an idea prevalent for a long time that they could not be raised in this section.

A new variety of strawberry which is raised by a grower at Carpinteria in Santa Barbara county is on the market again this season and easily brings 15 cents a box, while ordinary strawberries are difficult to sell at 10 cents. The Santa Barbara berry is a remarkably attractive one in appearance, of dark red color and absolutely clean, each berry looking fit to be a model for a painter. It is time that some of the growers in other sections, such as Azusa and Gerdena, should try and introduce some improved varieties, as with the large increase in berry production it is getting to be a case of the survival of the fittest, as in the orange market. There will always be a good demand for thoroughly fine berries at fair prices, even when the market is glutted with ordinary fruit.

of the country, and, with the exception of the saimon flabery, they are less developed than any other region. Nevertheless, in the period of thirty years, during which it may be easid the flaberies of the west coast have existed, the industry has attained great importance and now ranks next to that of New England and the Middle Atlantic States in extent and value. There seems no reason to doubt that the business will assume vastly greater proportions in the near future, although there is cause to apprehend a decline in several important branches, as, for instance, the salmon, the whale, the fur seal and the eca-otter flaberies.

"The various phases of the flabing industry of the west coast, including Alaska, give employment to about seventeen thousand persons, the capital invested amounts to about $8,900,000, and the annual value to the fishermen of the products taken is approximately $7,300,000.

"The special flaberies which give this region much of the prominence it possesses are the salmon, the whale, the cyster, the fur seal, the shrimp, the cod, the crab and the herring, in the order named. The value of the asimon flahery is about equal to that of all the other fisheries combined, while the canning industry connected with the fishery has an annual output but little less in value than that of all the fishery products of the Coast. The ealmon are by far the most important flabery products of the sheries of California they are surpassed by the whales, oysters and shrimps."

One of the most interesting sections of the report is that which relates to the sardine and anchovy of the Pacific Coast. On this subject Dr. Smith says:

"The California they are surpassed by the whales, oysters and shrimps."

One of the most interesting sections of the report is that which relates to the sardine and anchovy of the Pacific Coast. On this subject Dr. Smith says:

"The California cardine is very closely related to the sardine of Europe, from which it chiefly differs in having no teeth and less strongly servated scales on th for the past five years, they have been very scarce.

"The distribution of the anchovy is similar to that of the sardine.

"The natural advantages which the weet coast possesses for the canning of sardines and similar fish are unusually good, and are superior in some respects to those of the east coast. The dry atmosphere and other elimatic conditions of the southern coast of California are very favorable for the preparation of a good grade of canned fish. The culture of the clive supplies a matter oil of superior quality, which is essential in the canning of the best goods."

which is essential in the canning of the best goods."
Referring to the short-lived industry of sardine canning in San Francisco, he says the establishment was in operation from June 1883 to August 1893. During the years in which the cannery was run the yearly pack was from 5000 to 15,000 cases. The fish put up in the factory were caught in San Francisco bay. In the earlier years sardines small enough for use in quarter-pound cans were obtained, but during the last two years of the cannery's existence no sardines of size suitable for "quarter oils" could be obtained. This was the chief reason for closing the works.

under the superintendence of an experienced fish-canner from Maine, and the plant is worth about $10,000. The sizes and grades of canned sardines placed on the market from this cannery, and the will always my different and and stimulate cultivation and a mand and stimulate cultivation and a profitable trade."

Dr. Smith was surprised at the great variety of fish that are found in the markets of San Francisco, which he estimated at over 100 species. He quotes the country have to the substitute of the fish in a landed and sold in San Francisco at from 9,000,000 pounds to 12,000,000 annually, worth to dealers from 500,000 to $500,000.

There is a good opening for enterprise and to this crop state, but also in an extension of the market for fresh fish, which at present is a luncy with the people of this section instead of being a common article of diet as it should be. On this subject The Times will have more to say in the future.

Flour Trade With China.

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 5.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, while here spent most of his time in con-ference with Woo Gen. Seattle manager Hill, president of the Great Northern, while here appent most of his time in conference with Woo Gen, Seattle manager of the house of Wa Chong Company, Hongkong, and made searching inquiries respecting the disposition of Chinese toward flour as an article of food. Woo Gen was of the opinion that if flour could be laid down in China for 62½ cents per sack of fifty pounds, it could be sold at a profit for 75 cents by dealers and compete with rice. He thought that if the great masses of China once began to use flour they would not go back to rice, and if it could be placed within the reach of the laboring classes a demand would be created so large that all the flour mills on the Pacific Coast could not supply one-tenth of the calls made on them. Hill's idea is to carry flour so as to give it to the Chinese for 1½ cents per pound and bring return cargoes of rice so as to supply the markets here at 1½ cents per pound. He wants to be assured of a permanent demand before taking up the enterprise, and says that if the Great Northern does put on a line of steamers they will be the largest and best possible to be obtained. The question of a terminus will be determined by the lowest rate at which flour can be placed on ships. Seattle, he says, will be the place, provided the condition is fulfilled. This is understood by shippers here as indicating that this place will have the terminus, provided the Asiatic line is set up.

Russian Cattle.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Consul-Generel Karel at St. Petersburg has sent to the State Department a report upon the efforts Russia is now making to overcome the obstacles which Interfere with the export of her cattle and meats to different European markets. At present no Russian cattle are exported to Austria, England, France or Germany, exports of such cattle being confined to Turkey, Italy, Greece and the Island of Malta. Russian meats are allowed in Germany, but the quarantine rules, it is contended, are being abused to its exclusion. England admits Russian meat, but complains of the quality. Lately it has been found very suitable for beef tea and a demand very suitable for beef tea and a demand has been created, it being used almost exclusively for that purpose. The largest consumer of imported meats is England, that country using 1.440,980,000 to 1,661,-152,000 pounds annually. Russia exported in 1893 only 17,000 cattle, 82,000 hoep, 163,-000 sheep and meat to the value of 175,000 roubles. The United States supplies about three-fourths of all the meat for the European demand. WASHINGTON, June 5 .- Consul-General

Oriental Competition.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Charles E. Pearce, a fute and cotton manufacturer of St. Louis; who has just returned from a business tour through the Orient, is of the opinion that Japan will soon become an important factor in the manufacturing industries of the world. He says that the reports of the United States consuls show that the competition which the United States has to fear is not that of Europe, but that of East India and Japan. He visited Japan to investigate the advisability of removing the works of his company to the Orient, and upon his return addressed the Chamber of Commerce of this city on the result of his investigation.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service-CHICAGO, June 4.—Wheat again had a very weak opening. The starting-point for July hands at the last-named quotation. Some scattered showers were reported throughout Ohio during the night and foreign markets went lower. A reaction from the buoyancy which recently prevailed caused the weakness at the opening. The crop news received from privat sources was generally as dishear ening as before, aithough there appeared to be a difference of opinion in St. Louis regarding the amount of damage done to the wheat crop of Missourl. Some reports claimed the prospect of three-quarters of an average crop, while others were confident that there would not be over 60 per cent. The total shipmen's list week to Europe from the exporting countries amounted to about 9,000,000 bushels, including 2,400,000 bushels from this country. Later substantial assistance came from the buils on inquiry for cash wheat. The price had many rises and falls from 77 to 78, but finally bounced near the close to 77½ and left off with buyers at 77½. July corn opened at 60½, rose to 51% and closed at 61½, as compared with 51 on yesterday. Outs were irregular, the close showing an advance of from ½6%; over yesterday. Pork closed with a net ioss of 5c for the day. Lard was steady, the loss for the day being 5c. Ribs lost 5c.

PREACHERS AND THE POLICE.

Chief Glass states that he is almos daily in receipt of complaints from citizens that women of loose character have ated near them. Such complaints com from several of the best residence sections of the city, such as Hope street, Grand avenue and Bunker Hill avenue. The Chief is willing and anxious to do all he can to remedy the nuisances complained of, but he cannot proceed without some proof, and the complaining parties are sel-dom able or willing to furnish such proof.

Meantime, the annoying and apparently andless discussion of this social evil queson has broken out again with great viru the Police Commission. At several members of the Minis terial Association, which has been formed for the purpose of combating this evil, appeared before the board and gave the infortunate members "a piece of their nind," as the ladies would say. It is no er that at least one of the memers of the commission expressed his in-ention of resigning if this sort of thing was kept up much longer. These clerical their point of view, but it is difficult to understand what practical good they expect plish by following out the cours which they have apparently mapped out for themselves, that is to say, of giving the nission and the police author d which has never yet been a shed in the history of the world city of considerable size of what is tru-harly known as the social evil. It is tru-that the surface indications of this evi-that the surface indications of this wool considerable size of what is popu have been suppressed in some cities, much as the open sale of liquors; but that is an-

of the statements made before the n of the black cloth, who are pro ably intelligent as well as enlighte and well meaning, were very peculiar, e, one of them stated that if the part of the city were scattered all over Los Angeles he would guarantee to get rid of them. Now, this is nonsense, nd the reverend gentleman ought to have own so when he made the statement It is certainly a piece of gross presur this person to suppose that he could and reformers have been unsuccessfully attempting to accomplish for, lo! these

Any further ractical improvement in this direction ould probably be in the line of confining such establishments to some obscure sec-tion of the city and then proceeding with rities against houses outside of these limits. Unless the experience of ages goe for naught, any attempt at further restric-tion will prove as futile as the attempts which have been made to absolutely pro-nibit the consumption of alcoholic bev-erages, and we all know that they have proved to be dismal failures. The saloon and the house of prostitution are twin evils which always have existed and doubt less always will exist in cities of consid erable size. The question for intelligen are not satisfied with theories, is whether is best to regulate these apparently not exist and drive them into other chan where they are calculated to do far harm. If the women of the town are ed to a certain section of the city one who go deliberately to it with their os open, whereas if they are scattered rough the city, in hotels and todginghouses, and in private residences, the harm which they may accomplish among innocent and unsuspecting people is not easily estimated. Something of this we are already witnessing in the complaints which, as aforesaid, are being constantly brought to the Chief of Police, who, like all other men who have had practical experience with the question, is firmly continued of the futility of attempting to thordughly eradicate an evil that is as old as the human race. and in private residences, th

With all due defer ence to the wisdom and morality and carnestness of the reverend gentlemen who compose the Ministerial Association, it apcears that the moral of this, in its appliation to social diseases, is very obvious. MR. SMITH IN DISGRACE.

prostitution. Put them on re

If there is one thing that the world regiven, is expected to be faithfully kept if the person giving the pledge is an hon-orable man. In fact, there have been some very bad men who were not bad enough to break their word.

These remarks are submitted as aproopes of the case of Mr. Frank Smith of Jer-ey City. Mr. Smith's position is a pe-culiar, not to say a rather embarrassing one, for himself. It appears from the dispatches that Mr. Frank Smith was a member in good standing of the Suicide Club of Jersey City. In fact, he was not only a member in good standing, but he was an officer of the club, and must have been one of its charter members since he had held the high position of treasurer since the organization of the club, until a few days ago.

Now all is changed. Mr. Smith, we are grieved to say, is in deep disgrace. He no longer wears the gaudy insignia of treasurer. Instead, he has been shorn of his honors, and he has been incommently ex-pelled from the I.O.S.A. Those with whom he has heretofore been associated in the mystic bonds of suicidal fraternity and love now pass him by with a haughty stare and an arch of the eyebrows, which say to Mr. Smith as plainly as words, "What right have you to be on the earth?"

The sting of this interrogatory is height-ened by the knowledge that he really has no right to be alive and above ground. He should be dead and buried. To be alive at this time is really dishonorable. It neans a broken vow. Having this knowl edge, it is little wonder that Mr. Smith sneaks along through back alleys on his way to and from his home the home that he really has no right to any more than has a three-thousand-year-old mummy from the land of the Nile.

It was in this way that the distressing predicament of Mr. Smith came about. Mr. Smith, up to Memorial day, was a very enthusiastic member of the club. He tool care of the cash, and presumably was pres mine by lot which member of the clui should step down (or perhaps up) and out. The method of departure was kindly left to the departing one. On Memorial the club held a meeting, and the usual drawing was dad. Mr. Smith drew a prize—or, rather, he didn't draw a blank. The ticket which he drew commanded him to commit suicide within twenty-fou

Here was a contingency upon which Mr Smith had not calculated. True, he had seen others draw similar tickets, and had admired the fidelity with which they had kept their yows. But somehow the indoubtedly an exeedingly moral one—in the surface.

It is stated that the crusade against the former which has been made by two offithe beauty and worth office over the case. them, presumably, to carry out the terms of his vow, but really to reflect upon the situation. He soon arrived at the conclusion that if he was to commit suicide he sion that if he was to commit suicide he must take something to brace his nerves for the shock. Therefore, as is supposed (for he has not yet seen fit to reveal all the facts of the case,) Mr. Smith repaired to some drinking emporium commensurate with his official dignity, and partool of the cup that cheers and inebriates. As he drank he was surprised to observe how much more enticing life appeared to him than it did before. Somehow the idea of suicide grew dimmer and dimmer in his mind's eye. He did not return to his home that night, and his genial companions of the club assumed as a matter of course that he had kept his pledge. But no his appearance and was in high spirits." It is not stated in specific tanguage that Mr. Smith was drunk, but there is plainly room for such an inference. Mr. Smith declared, further, that he had come to the lecision that life was worth living, after all. This was the final drop which over flowed the Suicide Club's cup of disgust. The promulgation of such a doctrine by one The promulgation of such a doctrine by one of their number was rank treason. Therefore it speedily transpired that Mr. Smith was fired out of the club in the deepest of disgrace. Therefore it is that he dreads to meet the chiding eyes of his whilom brethren, and sneaks to and from his hom

Joseph Cook, who is making a tour of the world, said, in a lecture he delivered at Redlands last Tuesday night on "Ulti-mate America," that the two Americas make and in private residences, the which they may accomplish among cent and unsuspecting people is not by estimated. Something of this we already witnessing in the complaints to the Chief of Police, who, like other men who have had practical extence with the question, is firmly considered by that the southern portion of the futility of attempting to do the futility of attempting to do the futility of attempting to do the futility of attempting to coughly eradicate an evil that is as old the human race.

STATE PRIDE.

Men and women, unless largely cos-mopolitan by habit and experience, are in-clined to localize their ideas and to give their supremest pride and interest to that which is immediately about them. Our neighborhood, our city, our county, all of these are apt to hold more of our thoughts than does the State at large, or the country as a whole.

But this is natural enough; it is hum

sature to feel most interest in that which more immediately concerns us, and with which we are brought into the most inrelation Concentrated effort is essential to progress, and no citizen of Los Angeles would feel that he had failed in his duty to the public because he had contributed nothing toward the upbuilding of San Francisco or the other towns of the State, while his home and his interests were here. Indirectly, however, he a working for the good of the whole State when he is doing all in his power for the upbuilding of the city of his home, for no one place can be growing and prosperous without all other sections feeling somewhat the thrill of its growth and gathering strength from its advance

But State pride is an element which nust enter into the life of all its citizens if State progress is to be fully achieved Perhaps that truth was never more fore ibly illustrated than during our late Mid-winter Fair. When that great undertaking was first conceived it was a dark time, financially, throughout the country. The great World's Exposition—the marvel of the nineteenth century-had just close in its success. The people of the State and the country had spent money there freely, and, with the prospect of hard freely, and, with the prospect of hard times confronting them, they did not naturally feel that they had much to con ern slope which must necessarily be on much smaller scale than the one just closed, which was backed by the whole of Christendom.

But the edict had passed and California was determined to have her Midwinte Fair. With the genius and vim, the cour the sand-dunes upon the borders of the Golden Gate a city of palaces. They wer not copies of the White City's palaces but were unique and beautiful structures voiceful not only of today but of the storied past. Under their vast roofs she placed samples of all the varied product of nanufactures, the rich results of her unfailing sunshine, and an epitome of all that is grand, inviting and entrancing in this land of perpetual summer. Every portion of the State responded generously, and every land under the sun sent some tribute to add to the completeness of the great whole. nounced success and the marvel of all who saw it. It advertised the greatness, he grandeur and the unmeasured resources of the State as nothing els sources of the State as nothing else could have done. It proclaimed here a vast empire of territory yet far from fully populated, but rich in enterprise, in courage, in united purpose—in all that tends to progress and successful achievement. And it did more than this. It brought the people of the State into friendlier contact, and sections which had not particularly interested us heretofore impressed us by the history of their accomplishments, which was written in art. agriculture, mechanical skill and the thousand forms of a progressive civilization. Our hearts began to beat, as never before visions of a future such as had never dawned upon us before.

Then began an era of progress that will tell upon the whole future of this com-monwealth. The greatness of our domain, and the vastness of its resources dawned more fully upon us, and there were men who before had thought "the rustic cackle of their burg the murmur of the world, who declared their newly-awakened pride in the State and that they would in the future vote for any measure that would benefit it as a whole should be cultivated. Every child in our public schools should be familiar with the history of his State and take pride that a measure of its future is in his hands. It is the aggregation of units that makes the sum total; the unit of individuals which makes the masses. state is not an abstract something which must be held responsible for good or evil conditions, but it consists of a mass of ndividual citizens, of whom, if we would see it great and prosperous, every man must do his duty. The state can never be greater than the majority who compose it. If they are unpatriotic, un-progressive and unfaithful to individua luties the state will lack the elements of patriotism and of progress which are es-sential to its development and upbuilding There is no such thing as running away from individual responsibility in any sphere of life whatever.

Florida is to have a unique railfoad Fiorida is to have a unique salirola, which will be a curiosity of its kind. Not a pound of metal is to be used in its construction. Instead of steel rails, wood rails will be employed, which are of sufficient size to be half imbedded in the sand, and they are to be held in place by wooden pins, two inches in diameter and eighteen inches long, while the ends are connected by plank couplers placed under-neath and held by pins. The line will be forty miles long, and a small steam dummy will furnish the power for the road. It is something of a venture, but Yankee ingenuity promises to make it a

This fact section as to their validity. This fact is certainly important, insenuch as the city is paying out something like $300 per mouth more in interest than it would have to pay if the bonds were refunded on fevorable terms. It seemed to The Times, and still seems, that under such circumstances the Council should at least take in and careful paying the council should at least take up and carefully consider the propo-sition to sell the bonds. The American Economist states that during the last quarter of a century Engiand's export trade of home produce has decreased from f195,000,000 in 1869, to f143,000,000 do 1894—a falling off of nearly 25 per cent. The domestic export trade of the United States, in the meantime, increased from $375,166.697 in 1869, to $1,015,732,011 in 1892, England was under a free-trade policy during all that time, while the United States was under the policy of protection.

The first printer in California was Don Jose de la Rosa. He was born in Mexico in 1790, and came to San Diego in 1834, opening an office later in Monterey, where e did printing for the church and State Printing in those days was hazardous work, as Don Jose always had a sentinel posted at the door of his office. He died in 1892.

"Sam's Dilemma; a Parable Bearing on the Silver Question and its Solution," by John Lundle, is the latest contribution to the currency discussion. The Star Pub-lishing Company, Chicago, are the publish-era. One great merit of the book is its brevity, as it contains only seventy-nine pages, printed in large type. Unlimited free coings of silver would be flat money, to the extent of the differ-ence between the bullion value of eliver-and the "value" stamped upon the face of the coins. This difference is at the present time not far from 50 cents on the dollar.

More than hair the street cars in use in the United States are propelled by electric power. LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

A "Dead Beat"—Pass Him Round.

LOS ANGELES, June 3, 1895.—(To the Editor of The Times:) There is a very slick young faker, who sports the suphonious name of "P. Benton Neison, law reporter," who has been figuring in this city for the last month, and there are quite a number who have contributed to his exchequer. He is a stenographer and quite competent: could earn a good living if he would follow his profession, but he is a "bilk" and a "dead beat." He goes to members of the har and pretends that he has money coming to him from some prominent lawyer, "who will not say him until he has completed the work, and he wants to pay his room rent," and wants from 35 to $20 "for only two days," and he has played his racket very successfully. He had his "office" with Gordon & Long, Bryson Block, and this gave him a standing of seeming respectability. He works the "plous" dodge also, and has a letter from the Y.M.C.A. from some place in Arizona, which he pulls when he strikes a church member.

Whatever tale he tells should be rejected, for he is a colonaal liar and swindler, and the community should be on guard against this slick faker.

The Conflict of the Flags. A "Dead Beat"-Pass Him Re

The Conflict of the Flags.

LOS ANGELES, June 5, 1895.—(To the Editor of The Times:) I have read with interest in this morning's issue of The Times the letter of "One Who Wore the Blue" as embodying the norrow-minded views of a class of men, fortunately very small, who would glorify into patriotism and love of country the rankest ignorance and fanaticism.

The right which American citizers of foreign birth or descent have to display the flags of the country of their birth or origin, together with the flag of their adopted country, and which "One Who Wore the Blue" is apparently unable to perceive, is that which is given by the fact that he who in his new associations and in his love for the country of his adoption, the country where, perhaps, his adoption, the country where the list fathers sleep would commit a crime against nature and would not be worthy of the name of a man. And thousands upon thousands of citizens of foreign birth, who have worn the blue and the gray, according to the region where their lot had been cast, have shown that the memory of the old did not obliterate in their bosom the love of the new. Does "One Who Wore the Blue" think that, because a man takes to himself a woman as his wife he should for that reason forsake and hold in contempt the mother who has nursed him?

In the particular case under discussion, that of the misguided individual who presumed to tear down an Italian flag, it may safely be held that he who committed the outrage is entirely ignorant of what principles may or may not be represented by that emblem, and that "One Who Wore the Blue" to the word of the land of arts and letters, and should and indeed does remind the world at large, of long and fierce battles fought by right against wrong and might in the defense of freedom against foreign oppression; of the sufferings of those heroes, our fathers and brothers, in their struggle for independence and liberty from a foreign yoke, the very principles which the American flag typifies; it stands for light and progress. Where is then the fancied insult to the starty frag if the tricolor of Italy, that glorious em of resemblance in their struggle for ex-istence as a nation, but also because it is due to the genius of a son of Italy if in this nineteenth century some people are enabled to plant their feet on this land of the setting sun and to "bloviate" cheerfully and "erratically" about patriots, ism and love of country.

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION. A Testimonial of the System from Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania.

W. J. Shearer, Superintendent of Schools in Newcastle, Pa., writes to Mrs. Frank A. Gibson of this city in regard to his two-years' trial of individualism:

"At the start almost all the teachers of this city were strongly opposed to our plan for selfish reasons; but at the present time, you would have trouble to find any teacher, director or patron who has not been convinced by the results obtained during the past two years. It is impossible to mention the many grave difficulties met in the past two years of the hardest work experienced in my life. If I should now attempt to return to my former plan, I believe there would be war waged by the patrons of the school as well as by the pupils, 60 per cent. of whom have, in the past year, gained from one-third to two-thirds of a year's work. The selfish teacher and schoolkeeper would not object to a return to the old system, as the new one means extra work for them. We have forty to fifty-five pupils in each schoolfoom. Our plan needs no extra teachers and is not one expensive?"

MEDICOS MEET.

Fifteenth Session of the Southern California Medical Society.

The fifteenth regular semi-annual meet-ing of the Southern California Medical Society was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Chamber of Commerce As-

Society was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Chamber of Commerce Assembly Hall.

The programme of exercises was announced to commence at 2 p.m., sharp. Before the hour of 2 arrived, groups of well-dressed, intellectual-looking M.D.'s filled the aisles and ornamented the entrances of the hall, exchanging medicalnews among themselves and inquiring as to the status of the death rate in the various parts of the country represented by the members.

Everybody was an M.D., or supposed to be, and strangers were universally adressed as "doctor." Even the ubiquitous. Times reporter, in the course of his peregrinations among the men of medicine, was respectfully spoken to as "docter—ch! What is your name?" Outwardly he blushed, when crowned with this somber title; inwardly, he was filled with remorseful grief in the thought that instead of being a newspaper man, he might might have made of himself a fourth-rate sawbones.

But to return to the programme. The meeting was called to order by the president, and after the report of officers, and the appointment of committees, Mayor Frank Rader was called upon to deliver the address of welcome to the visiting medicos.

resentative, for the members of the medical profession.

The response to this address of Mayor Rader was made by the president of the society, Dr. P. C. Remondino.

Papers treating of the various departments of medicine and surgery were read by members of the society, and were followed by promiscuous discussion of the topics treated.

The second day's session of the society will be held on Catalina Island today, where the doctors will combine the listening to such pleasing topics as "The Differential Diagnosis of Addison's Disease from the Pigment Affections of the Skin, with presentation of a case," with the various local pleasures which the charming sea-girt isle of Catalina affords.

FLORAL FESTIVAL HOME.

Annual Meeting of the Board of Annual Meeting of the Board of Managers.

The annual meeting of the board of managers of the Floral Festival Home for the election of officers, and the reading of reports, was held at the home yeaterday morning, Mrs. Danskin in the chair. There was a large attendance, representing the charitable and religious organizations of the city. The report of the secretary showed the splendid work accomplished by the society during the past year. The taxes are psid for two years and the insurance for four years. The house is in good order and over three hundred girls have found a home there during the past year. An interesting letter was read from the messionary, Miss Cowgill, who has gone from the home to Jerusalem.

At the close of the secretary's report Mrs. Danskin made a few earnest remarks, in which she said that the work of the past year had been the most blessed of any year since she had been president.

Mrs. Felix Howes was then asked to take the chair and appoint a nominating committee, who should select the officers for the ensuing year.

Mrs. Danskin, the president, was reelected. Mrs. C. E. Day, first vice-president; Mrs. E. P. Johnson, second, and Mrs. Felix Howes, third. Recording secretary, Mrs. J. S. Slauson, and treasurer, Morris M. Abbee. The board of managers elected comprised Mmes. E. T. Stimson, J. M. Stewart, Charles Prager, O. T. Johnson, Daniel Inness, J. E. Cowles, J. H. F. Peck, Fairchild, L. W. Blinn, J. Ross Clark. Thompson, F. W. Burnett and M. L. Moore.

A BABY'S FALL.

Cable Car Passengers Horrified by an Accident.

A woman boarded a First-street cable car at the Terminal depot, carrying a sixteen-months-old baby in her srms. When she seated herself she placed the infant, sitting upright, beside her on the extreme outer end of the seat. Baby sat up real prettily while mamma fumbled for her nickel until a sudden ferk of the car sent the infant whirling to the stone-paved street.

There was a shriek from the mother and groans of horror from the other passengers who saw the calamity. The train was quickly stopped and the conductor picked up the baby from where it lay on the pavement, almost hidden beneath the footboard of the car.

As far as a cursory examination disclosed the baby was not in the least injured by its dangerous fall. The mother will doubtless learn from the incident that an infant of sixteen months, no matter show precocious, is not competent to sit alone on the end of a cable-car seat—a feat that, with the compound curves abounding in the road, is difficult even for a grown person.

A Colima Passenger Safe. E. Nittinger of the Bureau of Informa-tion yesterday received a telegram from Mrs. Bryan at Redlands saying she had received word that her son, William Bryan, supposed to have been lost with the sunken steamer Colima, was zaved. The news was a great relef to the anxious mother and sister.

Cited for Contempt.

In Justice Owens's court yesterday in the case of Ida Loustannau vs. W. T. Spillman, the defendant failed to be represented either in person or by counsel, and he was therefore cited to appear to show cause why he should not be punished for con-tempt of court.

THE LINOTYPE.

Strong Testimony in Favor of Machine Composition. New York Herald has this to The New York Herald has this to say of typesetting machines:

Since the advent of the typesetting rachine much of the bustle incident to getting the paper to press on time has been obviated. Only about one-third the number formerly employed is necessary, a skilled machine compositor being able to set from three to five times as much type as a first-class hand compositor. The contrast between the careless attire and prodigal habits of the old-timer and the garb. habits of the old-timer and the garb and deportment of the machine opera-tors is marked. The latter are neatly dressed, bright, active and of steady dressed, bright, active and of steady habits, and their general appearance would suggest a large class of students rather than newspaper compositors rather than newspaper compositors The typesetting machine has proved The typesetting machine has proved itself a strong temperance advocate, and, though the printer first laughed at it, and afterward opposed it bitterly, declaring forcibly that its failure was inevitable, yet, aside from those who lost their situations through its was inevitable, yet, aside from those who lost their situations through its introduction, there is not a man employed in a newspaper composing-room who will not be benefited ultimately, for the nature of the new work demands a clear head and attention to the laws of health, which must certainly elevate the printers as a body to that position in social life to which their intelligence entitles them and their spendthrift habits so long prevented their attaining.

As for the newspaper proprietor, the benefits he derives are manifold. The paper is handled with greater ease; it is impossible to "pi" or break up the type late at night through haste or carelessness; cutting small "takes" is no longer necessary late at night, and the appearance of the paper is improved because "plugging," or wide spacing, is not permitted; the type always appears new.

And so the great magician, Progress, has at last stepped within the mysterious precincts of the composing-room, and with a wave of his powerful wand transformed the appearance of everything.

FRESH LITERATURE.

THE OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE CALIFORNIA MIDWINTER INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION. A descriptive record of the origin, development and success of the great industrial expositional enterprise held in San Francisco from January to July, 1894. San Francisco: H. G. Cracker Company.)

The history of this great exposition, like that of the World's Fair at Chicago, can never be fully written in all the richness and completeness of its details. But this work, compiled from the official records of the exposition, and published by the authority of the Executive Committee, reproduces this marvelous exposition in miniature, and recoils to the minds of those who visited it much of its beauty and wonderful charm.

visited it much of its beauty and wonderful charm.

It was an enterprise which in its colossal magnitude far surpassed everything ever before undertaken by any single State, and, which was a marvel to the world on account of the complete success to which it was carried in the brief time allotted for the work of preparation.

The large and handsome wolume which gives the official history of our Midwinter Fair is a most valuable memento of the fair—that undertaking so rich in effect and so valuable as an exponent of the wealth, the resources, and the wonderful material achievements of this great State. The work is printed in the finest style of art upon heavy enameted paper, and is profusely illustrated throughout. It is a work in which every Californian should take pride, for it is a perfect miniature reproduction of our Midwinter Fair, which was an exposition of the genus, the enterprise, and the progress of the Golden State, and it is fitting, now that this marvelous creation has passed into history, its grand palaces of art, manufactures and agriculture have all vanished, and all the triumphs of human skill have passed out from fits gates forever, that it should be embalmed in the pages of just such a volume as the one before us, which will be a noble monument to the great exposition in which every loyal Californian took such parts and and all the resulting pride.

which every loyal Canterman took such that pride in the pages, and supplement the charm of its well-written text. It should find a place in every public and school library of the State, and it would add materially to the interest of the home library, quickening, as it must, the pride of the young in all that their fathers have schieved.

The question as to whether Riverside shall own its own city electric-lighting system has been definitely settled. The delinquent tax list in Orange county, published by the Daily Evening Blade, is out. The list occupies ten full columns of space. At 14 cents per square for the three insertions required by law the Blade will receive the munificent sum of $35 or thereabouts. If the merchants in Santa Ana do not have to pay more than the county does for its advertising they ought to fill their local papers daily with what they have for sale. Did they do so, become synonymous terms.

The habit which has become customar of publishing the names of the "invited guests" to a social function is getting to be something of a burden on the news papers. Sometimes these lists of name of invitees occupy a space of three-quar-ters of a column or more. In many cases scarcely a moiety of the persons have been present at the affair. It should be sufficient for the papers to publish the names of those guests who were actually present, and hosts should have the good sense to expect nothing more.

The Santa Monica spirprepared to demonstrate contrary, and the probabilities are that before they get through they will further il-lustrate the truth of the first axiom of Euclid that things which are equal to the same thing are equal to each other; or, to apply it to their case, body is spirit and spirit is body, provided both of them are sufficiently lively.

There is one good thing here in California now that genuine summer weather has set in: We have no cause for anxiously scanning the skies overhead to see if there are signs of terrific thunder storms approaching, or gathering cyclones, genpopulace into storm caves for protection and safety, while the home roof forsakes its foundations and goes rushing at a double-quick through the lightning-rent there is no sign of storm or tempest, and we have only to seek the shade to be full brethren, this is the land to live in.

Two dragomen were going from Red-lands to Moreno the other day and stopped at the tunnel to eat their lunch, which consisted of eight biscuit between them; one had five and the other three. After the meal was finished, the Redlands dragomen disputed about dividing the money. The one who had three biscuits claimed that he should have 15 cents and the other 25. cents, while the other one declared that this was not right. When they reached Moreno they referred the matter to Caliph J. H. Kelsey, formerly of Bagdad, who is a good mathematician, and he figured out a good mathematician, and he ngured out that one should receive 5 cents and the other 35 cents, which was bound to be cor-rect. Anglers Distinguish Themselves Picnic and Exploring Parties Having Great Times-Those Present.

AVALON (Catalina Island,) June 4.—
(By Carrier-pigeon Del Mar to The Times:)
Considerable excitement was caused among the guests at the Metropole yeaterday, late in the afternoon, by the return of C. D. Mackenzie and "Chapple" from a goat-hunting expedition, accomnamed by a little three-day-old kid and turn of C. D. Mackenzie and "Chapple" from a goat-hunting expedition, accompanied by a little three-days-old kid and an enormous pair of horns, measuring two-feet from tip to tip. Mr. Mackenzie, who is a great lover of sport, having hunted elephant in 'Africa and other big game in various parts of the world, went out yesterday morning, accompanied by "Chapple," the fairhful and competent guide. When on the summit of Grand Canyon ridge, seven miles back of Avalon, the hunters heard the cry of a kid. Following the trail, they came upon a band of fifty goats, led by a monster gray buck walking on three legs, which gave proof that he is an old stager and has met with a marrow escape at come period in his eventful life. "Chapple" at once took aim and fired at the leader, but his prey was at too great a distance for the shot to be effective. Mr. Mackenzie selected his game—a big brown buck—pulled the trigger, and the builet sped straight to its heart. The head end horns now ornament the mantel in the hotel office. Mr. Mackenzie will have it stuffed and will carry it away with him, as a trophy of the island. "Chapple" has adopted the little kid, which is a beautiful creature, white and tan. One of the sympathetic ladies at the hotel produced a nursing bottle and the little walf was indued to take a liberal allowance of milk, after which it trotted demurely about the hotel verenda, evincing its satisfaction with its new quarters by frequent plaintive bleats. "Chapple" has christened his treasure Geneva, and it is confidently expected that Geneva will be one of the most popular residents at Avalon when she becomes civilized.

WITH THE ANGLERS.

WITH THE ANGLERS. One Fitzsimmons of Chicago has distinguished himself as an accomplished fisherman, and left the island this morning man, and left the island this morning triumphantly wearing the laurels. Yesterday, in company with Mr. Bear of Canandaigua. Mr. Fitzsimmons hauled in over eighty pounds of yellowtall, a single eightpound b. acuda being among the catch. The largest yellowtall weighed twenty-seven pounds, and he was a game one, too. It took fully three-quarters of an hour to land him. Mrs. Fitzsimmons, not to be outdone by her husband, landed the fitty-three-pound stingeray, mentioned yesterday in The Times. The ideal fishing grounds are round about Seal Rock, where schools of yellowtail and barracuda sport in the water, waiting for the anglers. G. M. Arthur, who returned to Oakland this morning, after a week's stay at Avalon, made a fine catch of barracuda yesterday. This morning N. J. Britton and family of San Carlos, who arrived last night, went to try their luck with rod and line.

A WORD AS TO CLIMATE. A WORD AS TO CLIMATE.

This morning at 6 o'clock the thermometer registered 67 deg. The air is delightful and the atmosphere so clear that the mainland is plainly discernible. Yesterday the highest temperature was 68 deg. The sea, which has been very rough since the winds of last week, has calmed down and few cases of seasickness were reported among the passengers who came over on last night's steamer.

Mr. Reeves came over this week in his yacht Violet, which is now anchored in the bay.

Mrs. Pitman, wife of Rev. J. S. Pitman of Los Angeles has arrived and taken possession of their rooming-house on the ocean front.

George Weaver of Los Angeles is on hand, superintending improvements in his hotel, the Grand View, which will be opened on the 15th. The roof is being treated to a fresh coat of carmine paint.

EXPECTED GUESTS. Fred Wilding, manager of the Metropole, Fred Wilding, manager of the Metropole, is making arrangements to entertain the medical fraternity right royally on next Thursday, when the Medical Society of Southern California is expected to literally take the island by storm. Mr. Wilding is making preparations to banquet the doctors on their arrival. In the eventual terms, after dinner has been served, the spacious dining-room will be cleared and informal hop will be the programme. It is expected that many of the medicos will terry over a day or two, and for sa informal hop will be the programme. It is expected that many of the medicos will tarry over a day or two, and for this cause excursions to the Isthmus and Little Harbor are being planned, to say nothing of the goats and fish which have been instructed to be in readiness to sacrifice themselves on the dissecting table for the benefit of the medicos.

On Saturday fifty members of the Catalina Yacht Club are expected, and a special dinner will be served at the Metropole, to be followed by an informal hop.

The Catalina Marine Band is expected to arrive by this evening's steamer, to be ready to help out in all these festivities.

A party of hotel guests, including Mrs. and Miss Rosenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward and Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie, enjoyed a trip to Button Shell Beach today, under the friendly chaperonage of "Chapple," the favorite pilot of the island.

The arrival of the Times builetin, per carrier-pigeon service, is appreciated by the islanders, as it arrives some time in advance of the steamer bearing the newspapers. One of these builetins is posted up in the hotel office and another on the wharf, so that a general idea of the newsfrom all over the world, printed in the great Southern California daily, is obtained before the anxiously-awaited sheet appears.

MEETING OF COUNCIL AND BUILDING COMMITTEE.

A committee of Councilmen appointed by the Council met yesterday in confer-ence with the Building Committee of the Board of Education, to discuss the ques-tion of the proposed new school build-ings for the city.

A diversion was created at one time by the sudden illness of T. W. Mitcheil, one of the jurymen. It was thought for a few minutes that the court must be adjourned, but Judge Smith ordered the courtroom to be cleared and the disabled juryman led to an open window, where he soon recovered from the attack of too much Chinaman.

The first witness to be examined yester-day was Police Officer J. W. Blackburg, who testified to having been an eye-witness of the murder. He was standing at the corner of Alameda street and Ferguson alley, talking with G. H. Koch, when he heard a shot, and, turning, saw Lue Suey corner of Alameda street and Ferguson alley, talking with G. H. Koch, when he heard a shot, and, turning, saw Lue Suey fall and a small Chinaman start to run. Officer Blackburn gave chase and saw the Chinaman make a motion as if to throw something upon a bank near by. The officer kept on and soon overhauled and captured the defendant, turning him over immediately to other efficers. Mr. Blackburn then returned to the spot where he saw Wong Chuey make the motion of throwing something away, and, after a short search, found a large Colt's revolver, still warm and with one cartridge discharged, the revolver being otherwise fully loaded.

The witness was severely cross-examined by the counsel for the defence, but his testimony remained unshaken.

G. H. Koch was then called to the stand, and positively identified Wong Chuey as the man who killed Lue Suey.

Mr. Koch testified to having seen the ebot fired, and Lue Suey, fall forward upon his face. The witness stood still for a minute or two, and saw Officer Blackburn give chase to the murderer. He also saw three or four other Chinamen running away from the scene of the killing.

C. N. Whaling, a special officer in charge of the Chinese Theater, was then called, and testified to having heard the shot and run down immediately to the -place of shooting, which was only a few feet distant. He got there after the shot wasfired, and found Lue Suey lying as described by the other witnesses. The witness also corroborated in every particular the story of Officer Blackburn and of Mr. Koch.

Madame File, the proprietress of a "crib" in Alameda street, was then called to the stand, and testified to having esen the shooting.

The woman was sitting by the open window, engaged in telling her own fortune with a pack of cards, when the shot was fired so close to her that she saw the flash. Lue Suey fell directly in front of her door, and, in her haste and fright, she sprang out over the dead body, and acreamed loudly to the other immates of the house to blow their whistles for a policeman.

The Pomona Case. THE ELECTION CONTEST NOT YET DE-

A lively fight between high license and no saloons went on yesterday in Depart-ment Six of the Superior Court, being the real issue of the contested election case between J. W. Lorbeer and T. W. Atkin-between J. W. Lorbeer and T. W. Atkinson.

The city election held at Pomona on April 8 declared Mr. Lorbeer, the Republican candidate for the office of City Marshal, and representative of the high-license interests of the town, to be elected by a majority of 10 votes over the Democratic and Prohibition candidate, Mr. Atkinson.

Mr. Lorbeer assumed the office, but Mr. Atkinson contested the election upon the grounds that Edward Hicklin, one of the judges, was not properly qualified, and therefore that the precinct represented by him ought to be thrown out, and also that 15 illegal votes in another precinct were counted for Mr. Lorbeer.

The proceedings were not finished yesterday, but the recount of the First and Second precincts resulted in a majority of 2 votes for Mr. Lorbeer.

The Wilson Will Case.

The argument in the Wilson will case dragged its slow length along yesterday, and will do well if it is finished by tonight. Dist. Atty. Denis continues his argument for the contestants today. By tomorrow the work of choosing a jury will probably be entered upon.

(Florence Tribune:) If the law classifying counties should be declared good law, there will be no need of electing men to the Legislature in future, and that expense can be saved. It will only be necessary to get a girl clerk to write out the law to suit herself, putting in or omitting such sections as she pleases, and if the Governor approves it, you must take your medicine. The fact is that-the law as it stands was never passed by the Eighteenth Legislature, and never would have passed remedying such an outrageous proceeding as this.

(Prescott Courier:) Before the appointment of Governor of Arizona was made, the Courier used what little ability it possessed to secure the appointment of a man of great ability and unquestionable Democracy, but the cry was for Hughes, and this paper is now better satisfied with Hughes than the people who secured his appointment, although the Courier neither admires the Governor nor indorses all his actions. Personally, this paper has only the most kindly feelings toward Gov. Hughes, and has refrained from saying anything regarding this matter until the present time, when an utterance from a paper of unquestioned Democracy seems to be called for. Again, we can not see what benefit is to be derived from the removal of the Governor at present, and that his political course has not been as markedly Democratic as it should be. The appointments have all been made and the laws passed. His removal at present would accomplish nothing save to gratify a fruitless desire for his humiliation by his enemies, and the Lord only knows whether his successor would be even as good as he is.

Corn and other vegetables grow in the protected canyon during seasons when they cannot be produced in the unwilling soil of the plateau, which lies more than seven thousand feet above sea level. The First Day in Canyon Camp-The Trails, the Canyon and the Climate The Most Famous Leap on Record-Horse and Rider Go Down the Chasm Eighteen Hundred Feet-The Result.

GRAND CANYON OF THE COLORADO, May 29, 1898.

"And the next day it snowed."

I spoke truly when I wrote that sentence at the close of my first letter in Canyon Camp, for when morning came te our bivouse in the majestic pine forest on the border of the great abyse, fleecy white clouds were scurrying across the face of the sky, the raw wind was still blowing over the plateau, and flying snow filled the air. But explorations by members of

Hance, the plomeer settler, famous guide, premier mountain-sheep hunter and accepted authority on the canyon, the country and the climate, had assured us the evening before, with many protestations of vectors that the same the recognition of the same than the

to go alone, and did it. His companions were with difficulty prevailed upon to await his return from the depths before taking the back track for the settlements; but the hardy canyoneer was on time. He had made the descent, going clear to the river, and returning at the hour promised.
A separation subsequently took place, and Hance, the pioneer settler, famous guide, emier mountain-sheep hunter and acpted authority on the canyon, the counge and the climate, had assured us the sening before, with many protestations werselty, that it was the very first and of the season; that, in fact, there had Sachem Bass, Chief of the Supis,) and some wild pigeons were seen. Jackrabbits abound and a few antelope still remain. The lynx, the wildcat and the coyote represent the carnivorous animals. Hance was once in the employ of Maj. J. W. Powell, the intrepid explorer, who became famous a quarter of a century ago for his descent of the Grand Canyon. The guide was not, however, a member of Powell's party during the entire expedition through the great we eleven in season, and which is the size or shegginess, though he has a "store" and haddquarters by the manager of the place and Keeper of the tent hotel. There is but one Grand Canyon. Nowhere in human experience can its like be found."

There are but few known trails leading down into the canyon anywhere along its course; yet, despite the popular notion of its inaccessibility. Explorer Hance makes the bold assertion that he will undertake, on a wager, to descend its walls at least once within every fifteen miles of its length along this portion of the river, where he is well acquainted with it, and where he "has his lair and rears his young."

Hance's first trail is still in use, though he has made a new one, up and down which he carefully guides the rears his young."

Hance's first trall is still in use, though he has made a new one, up and down which he carefully guides the "skeery" tenderfoot for a consideration, either on foot or on horseback, the while descanting upon the wonders of the mighty red rift in the earth, or telling stories about his own experience—yarns that would paralyse Don Quixote and cause Munchausen to take to the woods. Hance's present home is a comfortable cabin of hewed logs, standing on the very brink of the abyss, a mile away from the Canyon Camp. Coming upon it while riding over the trall, I entered in the absence of the master, as the open door seemed to plainly say, "Come in." As mountain cabins go, it is a good one, and gives evidence that hermit Hance appreciates the sentiment, "Be it ever so humble, there is no place like home." In the single room were two blanket-covered cots that spoke of comfort for the tired mountain climber whom night might overtake while passing that way. A civilized cookble, there is no place like home." In the single room were two blanket-covered cots that spoke of comfort for the tired mountain climber whom night might overtake while passing that way. A civilized cooking-store and all the necessary domestic utensils for the proinbition of substantial frontier living stood in one corner. There was a miscellaneous array of commissary stores, guns, cartridge belts, field-glasses and other furniture. The walls were thickly covered with illustrations from the pages of popular pictorials. I noticed that the exploits of Buffalo Bill led all the rest, showing the trend of the Tennessee-an's tastes, for he is something of a wild rider himself, and can tell a story of feats accomplished on the back of his broncho that is enough to make Buffalo Bill retire from business and take in his sign. On the outside of the cabin door lay, scattered about, saddles, bridles, spurs, riatas, plows, harrows, "swingle-trees," tents, tegt-poles, a washing machine, and other "traps." The traditional iron kettle swung on a pole, ready for the cooking of brans or "barmeat." Near by was the rancher's truck-patch. The young plants had just been cut off by the frost even with the ground, and the prospect of tender vegetables for the dinner-pot looked elim, indeed.

Hamoe told us of alleged valuable mines which he has lying "in soak" in the canyon, owned by himself and four partners—mines of gold and asbestos—and he also reported the existence of valuable building stone and fine marble "till you can't rest." Like many another hopeful prospector, he is waiting, ever waiting, for that "company of heavy capitalists" which is always coming to take hold of the rich holes in the ground, but so often fails to meteriabile.

To successfully extract-from this Titanic gorge the valuable minerals which it may possibly hold within dis deep bosom, looks like a herculean, a superhuman tak; yet it is possible that man's ingenuity, man's persistence and skill, stimulated by his cupidity, may yet devise a means by which the pr reader; but he would be "déad wrong" in his conclusions if he thought that both horse and rider were dashed to fragments on the rocks. Only the bronco met that terrible mince-meat fate. Hance himself was saved, for he lives to tell the tale. Just before the horse reached the limit of his mid-air journey—to be exact, within fifteen feet of where the animal struck—Hance adroitly "sild off" the bronco's back and left him to go to his death alone, while his rider alighted among the elastic limbs of a young pine tree, which served as a perfect cushion to break his fail—a beautiful buffer, as it were.

It was a famous leap, and to prove that it was actually made, Hance points with pride to the crushed bones of the unfortunate horse, which to this day lie where they fell, whitened by the sun and snows of many summers and several winsters, not a whred of flesh nor a patch of hair left upon them to tell even the name of the intrepid cavailo who went to his death in the line of duty, while his master as well as own skin by climbing a tree.

This unequaled leap was made at Moran's point—I have seen the spot myself.

Quong is the Celestial who took a few shots at Wong Suey, for which the latter had him arrested. Suey, however, refused to testify against him, so the case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Tommy Girton and Chris Vejar, the juvenile petty larcenists, were given a ninety-days' sentence, which was suspended on condition that the boys would depart in peace and sin no more.

William Gregory, who batterd a Ch'naman, was granted a continuance of his case so he could produce evidence to prove that the Celestial had threatened him with a knife.

W. G. McGaugh, W. W. Sanchez and E. Rodona were found gullty of disturbing the peace and ordered to appear today for sentence.

The examination of Otis Peabody for burglary was begun. The testimony went to show that the woman who lived with him and passed as his wife, took the watch which he is accused of taking, and pawned it. The woman is missing and can not be found. As her testimony is material, the chances are Peabody will not be held.

John Clark, the man who tore down a Spanish flag, was fined $10.

The trial of Ed Van for vagrancy was commenced, but as the defendant is in San Diego at present, the case was continued till next Monday. J. Marion Brooks, who is conducting the defense, made a burlesque of the proceedings by giving all the officers connected with the charge of having leaded guilty to the case military titles.

Domingo Larondo pleaded guilty to the charge of having slaughtered a sheep in-cuarge of having slaughtered a sheep in-side the city limits contrary to the city ordinance, and was fined $3. James Harrison and Ed Anderson, ac-cused of violating the garbage ordinance, were acquitted.

Useful Work.

An all-day meeting of the women's societies of the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles was held June 4, when an interesting programme for home and foreign missions was carried out. A paper replete with interest was read by Mrs. Ida M. Chapin on the subject, "Freedmen's Work." Miss Peck gave an address on the "Chinese Work in Los Angeles." An informal lunch was served at noon. At the afternoon session Mrs. H. G. Billings, the president, opened the Foreign Missionary Society by scripture reading, followed by prayer by Mrs. W. F. Bosbyshell. Miss Ellen Pash, a returned Salvation Army missionary from India, gave an address on her work in that region. This was followed by a "Review of Mission Work in Africa," by Mrs. Washburn. An interesting paper was then read by Miss Frances E. Bennett, entitled "Gazland." Meanwhile busy fingers were at work on the day nursery, recency estriblished by the King's Daughters of Los Angeles.

A Boy Badly Injured.

A Boy Badly Injured.

A 10-year-old boy, named Lloyd Divver, fell under the wheels of a transfer truck at Seventh and Alumeda streets, Wednesday morning, and was so badly injured that his recovery is doubtful. He had asked the driver to let him ride, and fell off the truck while shifting his position, one of the rear wheels passing over his body, crushing the lower part of the spine and the bones of the pelvis. Police Surgeon Bryant put the little sufferer in plaster at the Receiving Hospital in the hope of saving his life, but the chances are that he will die or be a cripple the rest of his days. The boy's parents live on Ivy street near Twelfth, but his father is at present in San Francisco on business.

The unequalied demand for Paine's Celery Compound among the people of this city is tudone index of the great good it is doing. There are many in Los Angeles whom it has cured of serious fillness. Paine's Celery Compound makes people, well who suffer from weak nerves and impure blood.

TO NEW YORK

An old-fashioned way of getting there. Slow and safe, but hard work. Most women, have got beyond this kind of traveling—found something better.

Now, why can't you look at that other oldfashioned proceeding in the same lightwashing things with soap and hard rubbing. That's slow enough and tiresome enough, everybody knows, and it's not as safe as washing with Pearline. It's really destructive, in fact, the wear of that constant rubbing. Break away from these antiquated ideas. Use modern methods. Pearline saves at every point.

Send Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, it Back and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back.

THE RAILWAY CONGRESS.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Chauncey M. Depew, when asked last night for his opinion regarding the practical effort of the international Railway Congress, which is soon to convene in London, said:

("All congresses are practically university extensions. Educational leaders meet in congress and the result is in the improvements which subsequently come in the ourriculum and general character of educational institutions of all kinds. Arybedy who is in touch with the educational progress of the country must have noticed a distinct liberalization of the college curriculum and an enlargement of the college opportunity.

"At the approaching international congress in London, railway men of all countries will meet, each thinking that his method of operation for speed, safety and economy is the best. But the oldest and most egotistical railroad man will learn something which will be useful to him when he gets home. For the delegates themselves this congress is the best thing in the world. A man who runs for more than five years up and down one railroad line, lives in a tunnel, first without light and next without air, at least good air. To retain usefulness one must enlarge his learning by travel, visiting other lines, and by contact with his brethren from the other systems."

DEBRIS BEING CLEARED AWAY FROM THE RAYMOND.

Runaway Accident-The Victim of the Cutting Affair—Wedding Bells—Juvenile Offenders-Euchre Party.

PASADENA, June 5.—(Special Correspondence.) Mr. Raymond is making good progress in the clearing away of the debris of the burned hotel, and before he returns to Boston will probably have the grounds on Raymond Hill in good shape, and they will be open to visitors, as they have always been. There is nothing new in regard to the hotel, except that Mr. Raymond emphatically denies that the grounds will be used for a resort, in the ordinary acceptation of the term, though, of course, they will probably be the resort of a great many beauty-loving people in Pasadena, who will drive to the top of the hill, as in years past, to gain the grand view of the who will drive to the top of the hill, as in years past, to gain the grand view of the valley from that point. The idea that a resort was to be established arose from the lact that the brick building which stands at the foot of the hill, and which in the days of the hotel was used for the housing of the help, has been converted into a lodging-house for the convenience of men employed upon the electric road, and there is to be a cafe in connection with it. Mr. Raymond talks of dividing the grounds into residence lots, at some time in the future, and of disposing of the hill in that way. Pasadena people have not yet despaired of a hotel upon the hill, and it is to be hoped that they are not mistaken. Mr. Raymond has accepted $170,000, as recommended by the board of arbitrators on the mattra- of the insurance of the hotel and its contents. This is $30,500 below the amount of the face of the policies.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT. harrowing incident occurred about the this evening, which came near beo'clock this evening, which came near being a dreadful casualty. O. J. Reel, who lives on Walnut street, at the head of Hudson, was returning home at the hour named, having his four children in the spring wagon with him. When near home hishorse shied at a tree and plunged to the side of the road, running the wagon intothe ditch. The wagon was nearly tipped over and Mr. Reel was thrown out, one wheel passing over him, but without injuring him. A little girl was thrown out of the wagon and lodged on the axle next to the wheel, where she rode for a distance thim. A little girl was thrown out of a wagon and lodged on the axle next to a wheel, where she rode for a distance three blocks, while the horse ran madly vard his home. The child finally feil in her perilous position, and when picked was found to be seriously bruised about a head and back. Dr. Harry Macomber is called and ministered to the unfortute little girl, who, though she suffered broken bones, is badly hurt. The ter children were not injured, and the ree ran direct to his home, where he poped of his own accord.

other children were not injured, and the horse ran direct to his home, where he stopped of his own accord.

RESTING EASILY.

H. W. Hall, the victim of the cutting affair, reported in The Times this morning, is resting easily today, although he was delirious at times during the night, and suffered much pain. It is not likely that the result will prove fatal, though heal will be disfigured for life. He would have bled to death in another hour, and the cold-blooded cruelty of the deed is the more marked because it has been learned that he was not the aggressor. It seems that Mr. Hall bears an excellent character, and was never intoxicated in his life, according to his own statement. The cumulative effect of the medicine taken through two days and a half, had rendered him flighty, and to this alone his misfortune is due. The old man who slashed his face is named James McGuire, and has served time in the Missouri State penitentiary for murder. He stated to Constable Slater shortly after Hall was taken to the hospital that 'the fellow wanted a scrap, and I gave him one," but today told a story that made Hall the aggressor. It is needless 'o say that it is not credited. Dr. Prittle returned this afternoon from Catalina, and visited Mr. Hall at the hospital. Mrs. Hall, who was expected today, sent a telegram to her husband saying that she was unable to travel.

The ladies who signed the call for the attendance of their sisters to be present this afternoon to consider the reception of Misses Anthony and Shaw, were most of them present at the Method'st Church this afternoon, although the gathering was not what had been expected. Mrs. Margaret Colley Graham was elected chairman, and Miss Emma Lentz secretary, and there was some discussion regarding plans, but nothing definite was settled. There will be another meeting of the ladies some day this week, when the subject will be further considered.

WHAT TO DO WITH THEM. WHAT TO DO WITH THEM.

WHAT TO DO WITH THEM.

Three lads were found guilty of purloining lead pipe and the like from the ruins on Raymond hill, and sentence suspended. What to do with these juvenile offenders is giving the officials much uneasiness. The sending of boys of tender age to the County Jail for short terms is not favored, as it initiates them into criminal courses often. It has been suggested that if the manual training department of the Throop, or some other institution of the sort could provide instruction in certain trades for these neglected boys of the streets, it would be doing a great work for Christianity and humanity. It has also been suggested that this plan is not unfeasible, should the churches and societies here take the matter up in carnest, and instead of spending such large sums on the aesthetic culture of people who do not need it, devote their means to teaching these lads, who will certainly become criminals if sent repeatedly to jails. The Reform School at Whittier is full to overflowing, and the County Jail is the only institution to which the boys convicted of petty crimes can be sent.

The selection of a competent secrespeaker, with prophetic virion, looked ahead to the year 2000, at which time he believed there would be 400,000,000 of English-speaking peopled in the two Americas. This estimate he believed to be conservative, for Gladstone, he said, had prophesied that by the year 2000 there would be in North and South America 800,000,000 of English-speaking people. After dwelling at length upon what a mighty country America promised to be, the orator proceeded to point out some of the dangers which threaten this nation, viz., the saloon, spoils of office and caste. He advocated civil service reform in strong terms. The corruption of municipal government is alarming. There are 5,000,000 voters who are members of evangelical churches; if these would stand together, he declared, they would be reinforced with 3,000,000 more electors outside of the churches, and thus could control elections.

SANTA ANA, June 5.—(Special Correspondence.) There was a society wedding in Westminster Tuesday evening in the village church, and the population of almost the whole country west of the Santa Ana River turned out.

The contracting parties were George Wilson Mack, one of the business piers of the town, and Miss Irene M. Musselman, the popular village postmistress.

The groom is a member of the Congregational Church, while the bride is of the Episcopal faith, so the marriage ceremony was very appropriately performed in the beautifully-decorated little Congregational Church by the Rev. W. B. Burrows of the Episcopal Church in Santa Ana.

The evening was pleasantly but quite silently passed in the intricacles of the game until a late hour when refreshments were served by Mrs. Wickham, assisted by Mrs. E. L. Chrisman.

One of the features of the evening was the playing of George Huntington. After the championship of the evening had been won by J. H. Adams, Mr. Huntington played an exhibition game against four of the other players, Messrs. Crookshank, Adams, Reed and Chrisman, each of his plays being limited to thirty seconds, and winning one out of the four games, as well as being a close second in each of the other three games.

The present moonlight nights are being improved by the enthusiastic young hady and gentlemen cyclists in Santa Ana. Dr. Thompson, the bridal party standing in the drawing-room, beneath a graveful drapery of soft white slik, outlined with ferns. The corners of the rooms were filled with huge arranged, and broad, white satin ribbors were fastened from the chandelier to the corners of the table. The bride, a pretty blonde, wore a lovely gown of white silk, trimmed with pearl passementerie and chiffon, and carried a loose cluster of white carnations and maidenhair ferns. She was attended by a tiny boy, Charile Sutton, and a wee maiden in pink silk, Vivian Bulla. Tramps Made to Work Hard for a Night's Lodging.

Josiah Flynt, who has given interesting studies on tramp life in Germany and in this country, has extended his investigations to England. He writes a paper entitled "Two Tramps in England," in the June Century, He and his companion, a German student, completed a tour through the provinces with an experience in a "casual" at Notting Hill, London. Mr. Flynt writes:

We appeared at the door of the ward about half-past seven in the evening. A little window was raised, and I stepped forward to state my business. Unconsciously I leaned against the sill of the window, which offended the inspector in charge considerably. "What's your name?" he thundered. Still leaning on the sill, I gave him my name honestly enough. He then remarked to some person inside that we were not accustomed to such places, evidently, and called out, "Stand back; will you!" Back I stood. He cried out again, "Take off your hat!" My hat came off instanter. Still again: "You come in here as if you was a meleconary. You're not; you're a casual." I was as meek as could well be, Ryborg was tiching to grab the inspector with his long arms. The next question was as to where we had slept the night before.

"Straw-stack," I replied.
"None of your inpudence! You slept out—why don't you say so? Have you got any money?"
"A ha penny, sir."

"Straw-stack," I replied.

On Wednesday morning we were turned loose with our two ha'pennies. We were both so happy that we decided to get off the road that very day.

We had been tramps for three weeks, and had walked most of this time fully fifteen miles a day; so we looked up my friend at the Temple, and in a few hours were respectable again. That same day I took my tramp clothes out to the casual ward, and presented them to my friend the attendant. I had told him the day before that I expeced to get new "togs" soon, and he had put in a plea for my old ones. Good luck to him and them.

In these days of cheap and universal illumination we almost forget the humble tallow dips of our grandmothers, and the way they were made, writes Alice Morse Earle in a most interesting article on "Householding in Old New England," in the June Laties' Home Journal. Candle-making was the great household event of the late autumn or early winter, as soapmaking was of the spring. Careful and laborus preparations were made for this labor. The small wooden rods that had been laid up shove the great beams of the kitchen, or thrust under the garret caves since the previous year, were brought downstairs to the scene of the candle-dipping, and cotton wicks that had previously ben cut and sometimes scaked in saltpetre were placed three or four inches apart the entire length of each rod. Usually eight or ten wicks were fastened to a rod. Sometimes "cat-tails," or figs, were used instead of wooden rods. Then long poles were placed in a cool room, supported on two straight-backed chairs, and across these poles the recyclestic with

CAMPBELL'S CURIO STORE, Coroner Campbell had more cases on hand yesterday than he could attend to. In the morning he went to Redondo to hold an inquest over the remains of William O. Brown, a brakeman on the Redondo railway, whose head was crushed between the header of a locomotive, and tween the tender of a locomotive and lumber projecting over the end of a car, while making a coupling. The coroner's jury found a verdict of accidental death, due to unusual and hazardous circumstances under which the deceased was working, thus holding the railway company in a degree responsible. Brown was a young man, unmarried, but he has relatives who will probably sue the company for damages.

The Coroher had scarcely returned to the The Coroher had scarcely returned to the city before he was called upon to take charge of the body of another William Brown, aged about 60 years, who dropped dead yesterday afternoon in a little grocery store at the corner of Alameda and Jackson streets. Mr. Brown was a highly-respected old man who lived on Jackson street near Alameda. He came into the corner grocery yesterday looking faints sat down on a barrel and immediately fell over and expired. He was never known to be ill before. Death is supposed to have been due to apoplexy. The Coroner will hold an inquest at Garrett's undertaking rooms this morning. Brown's wife and four sons were greatly shocked when they learned of his sudden death. While the Coroner was yet busy looking after the remains of William W. Brown, word came from Burbank that John Maga, an Italian farm hand, fell off a load of my and broke his neck. The mules attached to the hay wagon ran away, which was the cause of Maga's fall. Death was instantaneous. The Coroner will hold an inquest today.

to the hay wagon ran away, which was the cause of Maga's fall. Death was instantaneous. The Coroner will hold an inquest today.

At 8 o'clock yesterday evening the Coroner held an inquest over the body of Miho Banovich, the Austrian laborer who was buried alive in a sewer trench on Third street. Tuesday afternoon. Sewer Inspector Bryant, Frick Bros., the contractors, and a number of their workmen testified that all reasonable precautions had been taken to prevent a cavelin, and that the accident was unexpianable. The jury therefore rendered a verdict of accidental death, exonerating the contractors from all blame in the matter. Some of Banovich's acquiantances say he had two brothers who met death in a similar manner in the old country, a wall of rock having caved in on them. Miho narrowly escaped death at the same time, only to come to America to be buried alive in a sewer.

Before the Coroner had completed his inquest over the body of poor Banovich, another victim awaited him at the City Receiving Hospital. A few minutes before 9 o'clock a telephone message came to the police station that a man had fallen in a fit in front of the Reception saloon on Spring street, near Temple. The patrol wagon was dispatched to the scene, where the man was lying on the sidewalk with a group of curious' people around him. When the wagon arrived, he was lifted up and placed into it, but he was then aiready dead. No one knew the victim, and the cause of his death has not yet been ascertained. Nothing was found upon his body by which to identify him. A knife and a few silver dollars were all he had in his pockets. He was a man apparently about 40 years old well dressed and of healthy and intelligent appearance. He was about 5 feet 7½ inches tall; had fair complexion and hrown beard; wore a biack felt hat and new shoes. The little finger of the right hands look like those of a shoemaker, tallor or dyer. The body was sent to Kregelo & Bresee's, where an inquest will be held today.
